

ARE YOU VACATIONING DURING HURRICANE SEASON?

Summer is the time of year that most people go on vacation. Summer is also right in the middle of hurricane season – and some of the most popular vacation destinations happen to be in hurricane-prone areas. That is why it is crucial to be prepared for hurricanes, even while on vacation.

Below is a checklist of things to take care of if you vacation during hurricane season.

- Talk to your travel agent to determine what is covered if you need to evacuate.
- Find out if your hotel has a hurricane watch or warning policy.
- Determine if your hotel located in a flood zone.
- Make an evacuation plan.
- Talk to your car rental agency regarding where to drop off the car in case of weather emergency and develop a contingency plan.
- Consider what you will do if gas stations are closed.
- Have emergency cash on hand.
- Bring a portable, battery-powered AM radio for updates.
- Make photocopies and scans of IDs and passports, and front and back of credit cards. Email them to yourself or a trusted person to access from any internet-capable device.
